

Risk Management Considerations Staff Carrying Clients in Their Own Vehicle in Alberta

Employees are sometimes asked to transport clients/students as part of their work related duties. Liability questions are often raised by employees engaged in such activity. Employees need to understand their liability if they choose to transport clients/students.

The Law

Alberta law mandates that the registered owner of the vehicle bear the primary responsibility for liability arising from the ownership, use or operation of their vehicle. This is found within the Insurance Act of the Province of Alberta, which is the governing legislation for automobile insurance in Alberta.

Does the law change when staff is driving their own vehicle on behalf of and for the employer?

No, the law does not change. Whenever the vehicle is driven, regardless of who is driving the vehicle, or for what purpose the vehicle is being used, the owner of the vehicle bears the primary responsibility for liability. It is the owners' automobile policy that will be the primary responding policy in the event of an accident.

Why does the owner's automobile's policy respond?

The insured vehicle(s) is attached to the automobile insurance policy. Therefore, whenever the vehicle is used, the automobile policy insuring the vehicle responds to any accidents involving that insured automobile.

Risk Management Considerations for Employees driving their own vehicles.

1. Since the employee's insurance policy is the primary responding policy, it is imperative that:
 - The vehicle is insured.
 - The owner of the vehicle carry sufficient levels of Third Party Liability coverage (the mandatory minimum limit of liability insurance in Alberta is $200,000).
 - Occasional use of your vehicle to carry clients/students is automatically covered and would not violate the policy. If this is a frequent responsibility or included in the scope of work duties, the employee should notify their insurer/broker. If it is considered beyond the scope of their basic automobile policy, then an endorsement called "Permission to carry passengers for Compensation - SEF 6A" is added. This change could generate an additional premium.

- Should an accident occur, the client/student would be covered under their own/guardian's policy even though they are being transported in the employee's vehicle. Should they not have an auto policy; the employee's policy would cover the client/student.
 - The employer should obtain evidence in the form of a letter from the employee's insurance broker/ insurance company confirming that insurance is in effect and the policy recognizes the employee's work-related use.
2. Request proof of insurance on an annual basis.
 3. Implement a written policy that specifies:
 - Minimum levels of liability insurance for those who operate their own vehicles on behalf of their employer.
 - The number and type of license convictions that is acceptable (i.e. careless driving; impaired driving; speeding tickets).
 - Accident history –number of accidents in the last three years that is acceptable.
 - Expected maintenance standards especially if vehicles is used to carry passengers.
 - Motor Vehicle Reports (MVRs) ordered annually to ensure all drivers hold a valid driver's license.
 - The completion of a questionnaire to gather information on current drivers. The questionnaire should ask questions about previous driving history; convictions; accidents; information collected will be subject to privacy.
 - Your hand-free communication policy.
 - Your requirements in any contract.
- Comply with all laws pertaining to the use of seat belts, child safety seats, cell phone use and speed limits.
 - Promptly notify supervisor of any physical conditions, vehicle defects or road conditions.
 - Notify supervisor of any traffic citations received while driving on personal time.
 - Attend driver training if requested.
 - Agree to complete an accident report, cooperate with the policy, supervisor, organization's insurer, insurance adjuster and legal counsel, should an accident occur.

The Staff Driver Pledge Form should include a statement similar to this sample and should be signed by every staff member who drives as part of their duties.
